Stefan Terlezki was born in Poland in 1921. He grew up in a small village and had a happy childhood. However, his life changed irrevocably when World War II broke out in 1939. Terlezki was drafted into the Polish army and fought bravely against the German invaders. However, Poland was defeated and Terlezki was taken prisoner of war.

Terlezki was sent to a prisoner of war camp in Siberia. The conditions in the camp were harsh and many prisoners died from starvation, disease, or exposure. However, Terlezki was determined to survive. He worked hard, made friends, and never gave up hope.

In 1945, the war ended and Terlezki was released from the prisoner of war camp. He made his way to England, where he started a new life. He worked as a labourer, a factory worker, and a teacher. He also became involved in politics and was elected to the House of Commons in 1964.

Terlezki served in Parliament for 25 years. He was a respected and influential member of the Conservative Party. He spoke out against communism and tyranny, and he worked to improve the lives of his constituents.

Terlezki died in 2017 at the age of 96. He left behind a legacy of courage, resilience, and hope. His story is an inspiration to us all.
